SPECIAL PRESENTATION

- Mark Harris, teacher from Ulster BOCES and student in program, shared information about their project. BOCES recently received the Lemelson-MIT grant award. This grant will enable the InvenTeam to invent a robotic exoskeleton of a hand to help people with paralyzed hands regain use of their hands and recover from paralysis. The device will be a glove-like exoskeleton that will be fitted with electronics and mechanics so that it can be programmed to move the hand and fingers of the patient. The device is intended to improve grip strength, flexibility, adduction, and abduction in the paralyzed hand.

The Board had the following comments:
- Commended BOCES on their project and requested to see presentation at future board meeting.
- Great opportunity for students.

- Dr. Charles Khoury, District Superintendent, presented power point on the functions of Ulster BOCES and its budget. Topics included, but not limited to, were:
